Senator Asks Steel, Union Joint Quizzes

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. John A. Carroll proposed today that representatives of the U.S. Steel Corp. and the Steelworkers Union be questioned together on the increase in steel prices.

The Senate Monopoly Committee has been questioning them separately. But Carroll, a Colorado Democrat who is sitting in on the subcommittee's investigation by special invitation, said the facts could be gotten better if the two groups were brought together for a sort of panel testimony.

The senators said he would like to see representatives of management and the union put at opposite ends of the witness table for simultaneous questioning.

He said that would be a better way to "see if we can't get some facts... and find out who is responsible for the price increases" which directly affect the price (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Say there's a heavyweight championship fight tonight. Some amateur is meeting Floyd Patterson the champ in Washington State, which is as far from the center of boxing as you can get without swimming.

There will be no television or radio—and probably no fight. If this isn't the worst mis-match of boxing history it will do until one comes along.

Police Call Love Death A Suicide

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Police ruled suicide today in the death of a man who put a bullet through his brain when he found out the woman he loved would return to her husband.

Shore Blaze Injures 3

NORTH WILDWOOD, N. J. (UP)—Three firemen were injured here early today fighting a general alarm blaze which gutted the Little Club at 18th and New York Avenues and caused an estimated $50,000 in damages.

The injured, all volunteers from the 15th street fire house were Edward Cox, 46; Battalion Chief Albert Webster, 42; and William Viall, 32. Cox was treated for a broken rib he suffered when a high pressure hose line knocked him over a fence. Webster and Viall were treated for bruises and lacerations by Dr. Samuel Mazotta.

Fire Chief Giles Graven said the fire was discovered shortly before 4 a.m. in a kitchen on the first floor of the three-story structure and mushroomed upward through the building before it was discovered.

The owner of the club, Dominick Piro, said the damage estimate included $5,000 worth of stored whiskey.

Auto Spins, Pins Driver In Croydon

A Bristol man died in Lower Bucks County Hospital early this morning, four hours after he was thrown from an automobile on Route 13 near Newportville Road, Croydon.

The victim is Kenneth L. Bailey, 34, of 321 Monroe St., Bristol. According to police, Bailey was driving alone on Route 13 towards Bristol when he apparently lost control of his car.

Bristol Township Patrolmen Charles Haines and Harry Smith said Bailey apparently lost control of his car when he swerved to avoid a barrier in the middle of Route 13.

Strikes Pole

The car swerved out of control traveled about 100 feet and struck a wooden sign, continued on and hit a utility pole. The auto spun off the pole, reversed its direction and traveled another 150 feet.

Bailey was thrown from the spinning car. His body was thrown against another pole and wrapped around it. The spinning car also hit the pole and pinned Bailey underneath.

He was taken to the hospital with a smashed pelvis, ruptured spleen and ruptured bladder. Doctors administered several transfusions. They wanted to operate but could not bring the victim's blood pressure up high enough.

He died at 7:20 a.m.

Dye Mixer

A dye mixer at Rohm and Haas, Bristol, Bailey lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Bailey, in Bristol. He was not married.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two brothers Robert, of Levittown and George of Jefferson, Pa.

Services will be held 8 p.m. Friday in the John C. Black funeral home, 314 Cedar St., Bristol. Further services will be held in Jefferson, or Monday.

Cost Of Living Hits All-Time High In July

WASHINGTON (UP)—The cost of living rose to an all-time high in July, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. This was the 11th consecutive monthly increase.

The July advance was one-half of one per cent.

The bureau said substantial advances in food prices and in the "other goods and services" group were the principal causes of the rise. All major groups except housing and apparel advanced.

Food prices rose 1 per cent during the month, reaching an all-time high. Food prices now are seven-tenths of 1 per cent above the previous record peak of August, 1952, and 2.3 per cent above the level a year ago.

The living cost increase means that about 1,300,000 workers under labor contracts containing escalator clauses will get wage increases ranging from one cent to six cents an hour. These increases are based on the cost of living index. The bureau said the bulk of the workers will get in- (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Top Hats and Tails Prescribed For Royalty At U.S. Grid Game

LONDON UP — John Taylor Britain's top arbiter of men's fashions, got to musing recently about Queen Elizabeth's visit to the North Carolina-Maryland football game in October and what should the dignitaries wear.

Top hats and tails, of course, he thought, or more properly, morning clothes.

And then he got to thinking about those top hats which would cut off the view of those sitting behind. What would you do? Flatten them a little? Bore holes in them?

Obviously not, thought Taylor, who is the editor of the trade magazine Tailor and Cutter and whose word on men's fashions is law in the British Isles.

Sets Off Furor

But his musings had been aloud and little did he know the furor his thoughts had caused. The first set of rumors hit Saville Row, the capital of English gentlemen's tailoring: "Somebody is cutting the tops off of top hats for the royal party to wear in Baltimore for the football game."

One version got into a London newspaper quoting the Tailor and Cutter's famous editor as

Charge Joe Louis Paid To Aid Hoffa

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) charged today that former heavyweight champion Joe Louis "was paid $2,500 for sitting in the courtroom two hours" during the bribery-conspiracy trial of Teamster crown prince James R. Hoffa.

Hoffa was acquitted by a jury which included eight Negroes. Hoffa told the Senate Labor Rackets Committee, "if he was paid, he was not paid by me. I know nothing of it."

The committee asked Hoffa to submit a list of expenses paid by the union for Louis, union officials and goons who came to Washington during Hoffa's recent trial on charges that he tried to plant a spy on the committee staff to steal secret documents.

The committee said Wednesday that Teamster treasuries have paid $5,159 of a $8,925 bill amassed at the Woodner Hotel here, where Teamster officials stayed during Hoffa's month-long trial.

School Officials Seek Deadlock End

Bristol school officials have threatened to cancel the contracts of two contractors working on the new James Buchanan school as the result of union picketing.

Members of the Philadelphia Trades Council have been picketing the site of the 28-room school since last Thursday. Union workers have refused to cross the lines and work has slowed down. School officials feel that the building will not be ready for the opening scheduled for two weeks from now, as a result. This would force elementary schools on double sessions until the building is completed.

The building council claims C. Raymond Lukens, general contractor, of North Wales, and Zucker, electrical contractor, of Philadelphia, are not paying prevailing wage rates as required by law.

This issue was the cause of a six-week dispute last spring which caused another slow-down on the construction.

The dispute was settled then when the township school authority and the school board promised to make sure prevailing rates would be paid.

Lukens claimed that he was paying prevailing rates. The union rejected this. It said union rates were prevailing rates and that Lukens was paying less than union rates.

School officials accepted the standards of the U.S. Department as prevailing rates. These coincide with union rates.

'Moonshine' Trio Jailed

Three Philadelphians were committed to Bucks County Prison in Doylestown yesterday on charges of "moonshining" whiskey.

Committed were: Samuel DiLuzio, 34, of 721 Washington Ave.; Norman Andrews, 28, 1204 South Penn St.; and Eleanor Lazar, 26, 2901 Girard Ave.

Bucks County Detectives, State police, Federal authorities, and state liquor control board agents, all helped in the arrests.

Quiet Night Prevails In Levittown

Hill Hospital, near Philadelphia, with a concussion. The hospital reported Sgt. Stewart was discharged this morning.

Traffic on Haines Road and Mill Creek Parkway around Dogwood Hollow was heavy last night. But it kept moving under the eyes of police. There were no attempts by spectators to congregate as they had done for the past eight nights.

Large crowds started to gather near the Myers house last Tuesday after the family moved some furniture in. The crowds got larger every night despite the fact the family actually did not take possession until this Monday.

The first night stones broke two windows in the house, and five persons were arrested. So far 11 persons have been arrested. All, except three juveniles, have been charged with disorderly conduct. Three of these adults still face hearings while the others paid $10 fines.

Cross Burned

A cross was burned at the Penn Valley School in the North Park section of Levittown last night.

The cross, made of wood, was wedged into the backstop of the Penn Valley School baseball diamond.

It was the second cross burning reported in the area. Last week Tullytown police discovered a cross burned at the Walt Disney School.

Falls Township Police Officers Wallace McComish, William Moyer, Elliott Bainbridge, and Richard Chalfoux investigated last night.

Police said they arrived on the scene about 10:10 p.m. The cross was almost burned out. The area was searched. No persons were found who knew anything about the incident, police said.

Back Meeting Plans

Leaders of the Citizens Committee and the Betterment group both gave their backing to plans for a meeting of community leaders to discuss a "peaceful solution of the problem."

The agreement was made after more than three hours of discussion by Rev. Ray L. Harwick, chairman of the Citizens Committee, and James Newell Jr., chairman of the Betterment Committee.

The discussion was sponsored by the Levittown Kiwanis Club and was held after a regular Kiwanis meeting at Pennsbury Inn.

Both Rev. Harwick and Mr. Newell agreed that they opposed an attempt to remove the Myers family from Levittown by violence.

But that is as far as the two groups will go on an agreement.

Rev. Harwick said the immediate concern of the Citizens Committee is not integration. He said the committee's purpose is "to achieve an atmosphere that will permit rational discussion of the issue."

Newell agreed on an attempt to find "a peaceful solution," but said that peace would "only be achieved when Mr. Myers gets out of Levittown."

Take Neutral Stand

Rev. Harwick, Citizens Committee chairman, reported his group "has adopted a completely neutral stand on integration."

Rev. Harwick said he felt Mr. Myers had moved to Levittown "innocently" without any idea of the trouble that would result.

The minister declared: "I don't like what has been done to bring the man here." He explained he felt Myers had consulted with persons who gave him "irresponsible advice."

Newell explained his stand against Myers was not the result of "bigotry." He told the Kiwanians he was originally from Durham, N.C., and had grown up and been close friends with many Negroes, including some who had "written letters to me when I was in the service."

Cites Statistics

But Newell charged statistics prove "property definitely decreases in value when colored families move into white neighborhoods."

He cited figures that "show 82 per cent of the unwed mothers in Philadelphia are Negroes."

Newell admitted that there is no legal way of forcing Myers to leave Levittown. He suggested persuasion and said the funds his group is trying to raise for legal aid are "not to force Myers to leave but to persuade him to go."

One Kiwanis Club member disagreed with Newell's statistics.

Meeting Of Minds

He said "real estate values in Levittown, Long Island, N.Y., have gone up since about a half a dozen negro families moved in."

Several times during the discussion, Rev. Harwick proposed a joint meeting of the two committees. He suggested a joint committee could be formed and a new chairman named.

Newell reported he "could not speak for all members of his committee." He said "I have not had the time to reply to your previous requests" on the joint meeting.

Newell explained he could not speak for his entire committee "because the law does not permit us to hold an outdoors meeting and we can't get a place big enough to meet inside."

Rev. Harwick, who said he has the "support of every law-enforcing agency in the area," reported he would find a place for a joint meeting.

Investigate Finances

The pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed Church of the Reformation, Fairless Hills, declared he has "completely investigated the financial background of Myers and the financial background of his parents and in-laws."

Rev. Harwick reported he has not "found one unfavorable comment on his record for financial or any other reasons." "I found him clean as a whistle," he said.

The minister said he has investigated and has found "absolutely no evidence that Myers move here was sponsored by the Friends, by the NAACP or any other group." He said the Friends "have high idealistic beliefs on integration but I don't believe they would attempt to sponsor any Negro family in Levittown."

'One Small Contribution'

Rev. Harwick admitted Myers had received "one very small contribution from the Human Relations Council of the Friends," but said this was some time ago and had nothing to do with his move to Levittown.

The minister said he realizes the financial situation Myers must meet in making the payments on his new Levittown home and on a new Mercury hardtop automobile and "is sure they are within his means."

Rev. Harwick asked Newell if he would "ask the Levittown Betterment Group to stop the mob violence." Newell argued the Betterment Group is "not a mob."

Denies Violence

"There may have been members from my group around the Myers home during the demonstration but I don't know of any violence by any of them," he charged.

"The violence was started when the State Police moved in and started working over the people," Newell added. "I have been at some of those demonstrations and have talked many of the people into going home," he said.

"People from New Jersey and Pittsburgh have offered to help the Betterment group but we have turned them down," Newell pointed out.

Newell said he feels Levittown residents definitely want the Myers family out of Levittown. He said a poll of residents in one section of the community showed 97 per cent of the residents in agreement with this. He refused to say which section was polled.

Talks Of Precedent

Asked if he thought getting Myers to move out of Levittown would solve the question of Negroes in Levittown, Newell said he thought "setting a precedent now would discourage other Negro families in the future."

Joseph Segal, president of the Levittown Civic Association, declared after the meeting that there "seems to be a void in Rev. Harwick's information about the Negro family moving here."

Segal said the Levittown Civic Association heard a report, early in July, that the Human Relations Council was talking about introducing a Negro family to Levittown.

According to Segal, the report was heard a few days before a meeting at the Faith Reformed Church in which integration was discussed.

Segal said members of the LCA attempted to arrange a meeting with the group that had discussed integration. He said he was referred to a Rev. William Warren, Morrisville.

Letter Sent

A letter signed by Segal was sent to Rev. Warren. Segal received a reply from Rev. Warren in which he said he would be glad to meet with the LCA after Labor Day. Rev. Warren wrote the letter while he was traveling in Canada.

"Then this happened," Segal said.

Bristol Township Police Chief John R. Stewart had submitted a request for a curfew to Henry J. Rolfe, Jr., township manager, yesterday. Rolfe, this morning, said he had reported the request at the executive session of the board prior to the public meeting. "It was decided not to bring the issue up at the public meeting," Rolfe said.

However township commissioners last night denied that a request for a curfew on children 16 and under had come before the board during the present demonstrations in Levittown.

Solicitor William Carlin and board president Eugene Kehoe stated emphatically that "the matter has never been brought before the board."

The curfew was the only matter discussed which pertained to the disturbances in Levittown during the entire four-hour session of the commissioners. The meeting, compared to a previous one which had to be recessed, was exceptionally quiet and smooth, and between six and 20 residents sat in the board chambers intermittently.

Discussions on the curfew itself were made during a conference after the regular meeting, requested by the press. No members of the public attended, and none requested the floor on the Levittown situation during the regular meeting.

Kehoe told reporters that the commissioners had discussed a curfew prior to the moving in of Levittown's first Negro family, but that it hadn't been brought up since.

Confidence In Police

Carlin told reporters that even if a curfew ordinance were approved, it would "take a while to draw up" and couldn't be put into effect for several weeks.

Commissioner Rudolph Kraus said he didn't think it would be fair to punish the entire township (with the curfew) and that he had confidence the police could maintain order.

Carlin commented, "I think it would be a difficult thing giving emergency powers, and I don't think it would be appropriate legislation. It's something I'd advise the commissioners not to do without prolonged study. I think the board feels we've all ready done everything we possibly can (in Levittown)."

Township Manager Rolfe said he wouldn't want to be invested with those powers (emergency), but he was favorable to a curfew which could be put into effect when necessary.

Lefcourt Comments

Commissioner Harold Lefcourt commented, "A lot of us in this room tonight have pride in our community. When you say 'curfew,' you're putting a blot on Bristol Township." Lefcourt didn't feel a curfew was necessary to curb the disturbances in Levittown, considering last night's lack of a demonstration in or near Dogwood Hollow and for other reasons.

Kraus said he felt the situation over the Myers' family will clear up soon, although gradually.

Twp. Names 2 To Board At Meeting

Bristol Township commissioners last night appointed two representatives to the Levittown Free Library board and named a new member to the township zoning board.

Approved to represent the commissioners on the library board were Mrs. Evelyn McCargar and Ralph J. Folcarelli, Farmbrook and Blue Ridge, Levittown, respectively.

Frank Seaders, Croydon, was appointed to the zoning board to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Owen Kidd.

Seaders won the nomination in a 6-4 commissioners vote against Vincent Hartley, Levittown. The resolution appointing Seaders, however, was passed unanimously.

Board Of Health

Dr. Samuel Katz, Harrison, and King Sts., was reappointed to the township board of health in a unanimous vote. He will serve until Jan. 1, 1962.

Other resolutions passed last night include authorization for purchase of the Wheeler tract, near the Pennsylvania Turnpike, for $1,000, and part of land owned by Eva M. Lane at Norman and Manor Aves., near Junewood, Levittown, for $1,800.

The Wheeler tract will be used for street purposes, and a street right of way was purchased on the Lane land.

Dump Suggestions

In other business, the commissioners took no action on two suggestions for operation of the township dump on Route 13.

Commissioner Lawrence Mervine suggested a daily receipt sheet be presented to the township manager to insure proper recording of dumping fees. Commissioner Harold Lefcourt asked that a three-man committee be appointed to "re-evaluate the dumping problem."

Commissioner Elbert Kohli warned the board it should consider a new dumping place because the present one is 70 per cent filled. He suggested swamp land near the Langenfelder lake, which could be filled and possibly used for recreation later.

Commissioner Fred Hibbs wanted the dump out of the Sixth Ward, his own, where it has been for the past six years.

Weed Control

Mervine also asked for an ordinance to control weeds. A motion was approved to have the ordinance drawn up and presented to the commissioners for study before the next regular meeting.

The commissioner suggested it apply to open fields and be enforced only when neighbors complain.

Boy Drowns In Delaware

Two-year-old Bruce W. Cobb, Burlington, drowned in the Delaware River Tuesday after he apparently slipped beneath a guard rail and into the water.

The lad, of 87 West 5th St., disappeared from his grandparents' home shortly after noon, police said. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Primos Cobb, Sr., live at 238 East Pearl St.

Rescuers recovered the body after about 20 minutes, but were unable to revive the child, police said. Coroner Wayne Page issued a certificate of accidental drowning.

Levitt Firm 'On The Move' In Jersey

Levitt Sons, Inc. is "on the move" in Willingboro Township and the first homes in Levittown, N.J., are expected to be going up early in 1958 on sewer schedule.

Work on the sewer treatment plant is now underway. The contract is to the R. M. Luff Construction Co., of Willow Grove. It is being built for the Resources Development Corp. of Willingboro Township (Levittown), at the junction of Rancocas and Mill creeks on what was the Fred Eschench farm.

And, according to reliable sources, the exhibit center with sample houses and the sewer plant will be completed at about the same time, probably next February.

It is the Levitt's firm's policy to install sewer and water lines and streets before starting the construction of houses.

The administration building, to be the "last word" in modernistic construction, is rapidly nearing completion. It is on the former farm of Quentyn Walton on the south side of Route 130 between Copic Lane and Wood lane Road.

Latest action by Levitt has been the demolishing of three unoccupied homes and other buildings on Route 130, namely the former farm houses of Joseph Snyder. Richard Walton and the Walton homestead last occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Walton, Sr. The former Beaty residence on Copic Lane also was razed.

Cleaning Up

Bulldozers and cranes have been busy for the past few days cleaning up the area, removing foundations, trees, including two peach orchards, and filling in to level off the tract.

It is reported the "world's largest" shopping center will be built on the site formerly occupied by the Snyder and Richard Walton farm with a large parking area for thousands of cars extending westward toward the administration building. The exhibit center is expected to be nearby.

There's a possibility a huge oak tree, over 250 years old, that stood in front of the Walton home may be saved.

Tot Drowns In Bathtub

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — William McClelland, 4, drowned Wednesday night when he slipped and fell into a bathtub in his Germantown home.

Police said the child's mother, Mrs. Evelyn McClelland, was preparing to bathe William, and his sisters, Lois, 9, and Denise, 6. The children were sitting on the side of the tub, dangling their feet in several inches of water, while their mother went downstairs to perform a chore.

William apparently toppled into the water, striking his head on the tub. Lois, a deaf mute, ran downstairs and summoned her mother, who pulled the boy from the tub and called police.

Police and rescue squad members were unable to revive the boy and he was pronounced dead at Women's Medical College Hospital.

Feasterville Youth Puts Hobbies In Spotlight With Two Displays

Thirteen-year-old Jim McManus, of 126 Pine Hill Road, Feasterville, is an enthusiastic hobbyist, as residents of the Feasterville area are finding out.

Within the space of one month, the McManus youth has displays of his two main hobbies, collecting foreign coins and miniature war machines, featured in public exhibits.

Parents

Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McManus.

The coin collection is displayed in the window of the People's National Bank, Feasterville, while his miniature war scene is featured in the window of Hepburn's Hobby Shop, Feasterville.

Family Collection

The McManus youth cannot claim full credit for the coin collection. It has been in the McManus family. It was originated by Jim's grandfather, James P. Considine, who was associated with the North American newspaper in Philadelphia. He started the collection as a boy of 11, when he was confined to bed more than a year.

Jim plans to keep the coin collection until a time when it may help pay for the education of his children.

Military Scene

The military scene in Hepburn's shop window shows miniature soldiers, tank jeep, half truck and plane attacking a German tank that is emerging from a hillside cave.

Jim's hobbies take up a lot of his hours, but he still has time to be a carrier for the Courier-Times newspapers.

Paper Street To Remain Status Quo

Morrisville's "paper street" will stay in that condition for a little while longer.

A section along Glenside Ave., which has never been opened officially, is being considered as a "paper street" by borough records.

Assessment

Persons with property touching the street are being charged a front foot assessment on sewer rental.

If releases are signed by all persons with property along the street, the borough will release all claims to the street and sewer rental fees will go down.

At a meeting last night in the borough hall, one resident refused to sign the release. For the borough to approve the release the signature of every resident is needed.

Later Needs

The resident claimed he might want the street opened and cared for by the borough at a later date.

James Magee, chairman of the street committee, presided over the meeting last night.

Another meeting will be set at a later date.

Steward To Attend Police Group Clambake

Morrisville Borough Secretary Bob Steward will attend the Bucks County Police Association clambake tonight at Dublin.

The affair is slated for the F.O.P. picnic grounds in Dublin at 7 p.m.

Mr. Steward said this is a real clambake, in fact as well as name, with clams and clam chowder soup topping the menu.

Morrisville Banker Attends Conference

A Morrisville banker is attending the Pennsylvania Bankers Association meeting in Harrisburg this week.

Henry H. Bunting, of the Morrisville Bank, is attending the conference at the state capital.

Several other Lower Bucks County bankers are at the state-wide conference.

"As long as he insists on keeping our Philadelphia National Bank account just in his name, I drag him along to pay the bills."

Library Fate Up To Public In Morrisville

The fate of the Morrisville Free Public Library is now up to the public.

Morrisville Borough Council voted this week to place the library question on a referendum for ballot in the November election.

Referendum

The referendum will ask borough council to approve a special tax, not to exceed two mills, for the purpose of running the library.

Councilman Neal Nolan made the proposal which was passed unanimously by council.

At present, Morrisville residents pay a 20 mill tax. The rate was lowered one mill from the previous year.

For several years, the library has been supported by the donations of the public through the efforts of the Morrisville Women's Club.

Recently the women began circulating petitions to have the proposal for a referendum placed before council for its decision.

Representatives of the women's group have stated that it has become increasingly more difficult to raise funds for the continuation of the library.

The women feel without the borough council taking over the operation of the library, the entire operation may have to close.

A spokesman for the library group said the younger children in the borough make the most use of the library and they would be hurt most if the library had to discontinue its services.

A referendum needs only a simple majority to be carried in an election.

Demos Slate Yardley Picnic

Morrisville Democrats will picnic Sunday Sept. 8 at the American Legion Home on South Main Street, Yardley. The affair is headed by a committee under the leadership of Charles Inverso, committeeman from the Fourth Ward.

Democratic Chairman Francis A. Troilo has appointed the following committee: John Toth, Earl Wilcox, Nicholas Pelehaty, Joseph Danbury, Miriam Daughton, Frank Gaskill, Agnes Gaskill, Anthony Pimfo, Nicholas Mislan, John Foose, Thomas oxe, Mary Bennet and Helen Evans.

Inverso said that any Morrisville resident interested in going could contact him or any member of the committee for tickets which are only one dollar per adult with children admitted free when accompanied by their parents.

All county candidates and local office seekers will attend. The event will be indoors in the event of rain.

Port Authority Plans Employee Injections

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP)—A resolution authorizing a program of Asiatic flu vaccine injections to employees of the Delaware River Port Authority was considered Wednesday at the authority's regular monthly meeting.

this fall. Completion is expected in about a year.

The building will be completely air conditioned, include off-street parking and many of the latest modern facilities in the apartment.

The pitch for a whole orchestra is given by the oboe, which sounds the note A.

Meeting Set For Building

The $2,000,000 apartment building project in Morrisville will move another step closer to construction with a public hearing on the problem Tuesday night.

The public will have its say at the borough hall at 8 p.m.

Borough Council has approved the zoning amendment providing for construction of the building.

Before acceptance, the zoning amendment needs three separate readings and approval and the public hearing.

The public hearing is strictly for information sake and in no way will bind the councilmen to vote for or against the measure.

Louis Cahan, Trenton builder, stated he intends to build the 168-apartment structure sometime

William Davis School To Be Late With Opening Date

The William W. H. Davis Elementary School in Southampton will not be ready for the opening of school on Sept. 5.

Hopes of having the building ready for some 200 school pupils were finally dashed, Tuesday night, at a special meeting of the Southampton Elementary School.

Most of the school construction is complete but contractors must install heating and lighting equipment and are experiencing an unanticipated delay in obtaining these materials.

Assignment

In the meantime, the pupils who would have entered that school will report Sept. 5 to Southampton Elementary School.

Although the temporary setup at the Southampton school will strain its facilities, Mrs. Eleanor Zemil, assistant elementary supervisor, says the children will not be subjected to overcrowded classrooms or double school sessions.

If the children had moved into the new building, the older building would have been left with three vacant classrooms.

By using these three rooms and utilizing the auditorium, stage and teachers' room, the older building will be able to handle all the pupils.

School board officials do not know how long it will be before the pupils are able to transfer to the new building.

The school board has announced the schedule for school buses will remain substantially the same this year as last.

$3 Billion Is Aid Prediction

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two key senators predicted today the Senate would approve a foreign aid appropriation of about three billion dollars.

The two were Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, who wants the Senate to vote more than the $2,500,000,000 approved by the House, and Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D.-La.), who believes the House figure is high enough.

Both are members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which probably will not act on the House-approved bill until next Monday.

Knowland told reporters he expected the Senate to accept a total "in the neighborhood of three billion dollars but that it was too early for a more definite estimate. President Eisenhower appealed to the Senate Wednesday to "put back every cent" of the full $3,367,000,000 program.

Ellender said he expected the Senate to approve no more than three billion dollars. He foresaw a final figure of about $2,750,000,000 after the Senate version had been reconciled with the House bill by a joint conference committee.

The President also had at least the partial support of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) who said he would vote some increase over the House-approved figure.
